

LIM OH & ORS

a

v.

ALLEN & GLEDHILL

FEDERAL COURT, KUALA LUMPUR
WAN ADNAN ISMAIL CJ (MALAYA)
STEVE SHIM CJ (SABAH & SARAWAK)
MOHAMED DZAIDDIN FCJ
[CIVIL APPEAL NO: 02-18-2000(W)]
26 FEBRUARY 2001

b

CIVIL PROCEDURE: Action - Filing of second suit - Whether an abuse of process - Dismissal of first suit - Whether dismissal upon non-compliance of a peremptory court order - Whether appeal procedure should be resorted to - Whether filing of second suit an attempt to circumvent appeal procedure

d

CIVIL PROCEDURE: Striking out - Grounds for - Filing of second suit - Whether an abuse of process - Dismissal of first suit - Whether dismissal upon non-compliance of a peremptory court order - Whether appeal procedure should be resorted to - Whether filing of second suit an attempt to circumvent appeal procedure

e

CIVIL PROCEDURE: Rules of court - Non-compliance of O. 20 r. 9 Rules of the High Court 1980 - Failure to effect amendment within 14 days - Whether a failure to comply with rules of court or a peremptory court order

f

CIVIL PROCEDURE: Action - Dismissal of action - Non-compliance of O. 20 r. 9 Rules of the High Court 1980 - Failure to effect amendment within 14 days - Whether a failure to comply with rules of court or a peremptory court order - Whether appeal procedure should be resorted to - Whether filing of second suit constituted an abuse of process

g

The appellants' (plaintiffs) first suit was dismissed upon failure of the appellants to effect an amendment to include the respondent as a defendant in their writ of summons and statement of claim within 14 days pursuant to O. 20 r. 9 of the Rules of the High Court 1980 ('RHC'). The appellants did not appeal against that decision but instead filed a second suit. That, too, was eventually dismissed on the grounds that issue estoppel applied and so was an abuse of the process of the court. The appellant's appeal to the Court of Appeal was dismissed. Hence, the present appeal.

h

i

- a* The appellants contended that the Court of Appeal erred in relying on the authority of Janov v. Morris as that case was confined to a situation where a plaintiff's action was struck off for disobedience of a peremptory court order but here, the first suit of the appellants was struck off for mere failure to comply with the procedural rules of the court, namely, O. 20
- b* r. 9 RHC. That being so, they should not be precluded from filing the second suit.

Held:

Per Steve Shim CJ (Sabah & Sarawak)

- c* [1] The factual circumstances of the case clearly showed that it was not a situation where there was a mere failure on the part of the appellants to comply with the rules of the court. There was in existence a specific court order directing the appellants to effect the amendments within 14 days in compliance with the RHC. It was in the nature of a
- d* peremptory order of the court and the appellants had failed to comply with such a peremptory order. In the circumstances, the court disagreed with the appellants' contention that the Court of Appeal had erred in relying on the authority of Janov v. Morris.
- e* [2] The appellants ought to have appealed against the decision of the court in the first suit. The filing of the second suit containing as it did, the same issues and reliefs as in the first suit amounted to a deliberate attempt to circumvent the necessary appeal procedure and therefore constituted an abuse of the process of the court.

- f* [Appeal dismissed.]

[Bahasa Malaysia Translation Of Headnotes]

- g* Tindakan perayu-perayu (plaintif-plaintif) yang pertama dibatalkan apabila mereka gagal dalam pindaan untuk memasukkan penentang sebagai defendan dalam writ saman dan pernyataan tuntutan dalam masa 14 hari berdasarkan A. 20 k. 9 Kaedah-kaedah Mahkamah Tinggi 1980 ('KMT'). Pelayu-perayu tidak merayu terhadap keputusan itu tetapi memfailkan tindakan kedua. Ianya telah dibatalkan juga akhirnya atas dasar bahawa isu "estopal" telah terpakai dan dengan itu telah menyalahgunakan proses mahkamah. Rayuan perayu kepada Mahkamah Rayuan juga telah ditolak.
- h* Maka rayuan ini.

- i* Pelayu menyatakan bahawa Mahkamah Rayuan telah terkhilaf dengan bersandarkan kepada kes Janov v. Morris kerana di dalam kes tersebut tindakan plaintiff telah dibatalkan kerana tidak menuruti perintah wajib, tetapi dalam perkara ini, tindakan pertama perayu telah dibatalkan hanya kerana gagal untuk menuruti prosidur aturan mahkamah, terutamanya A. 20 k. 9 KMT. Oleh yang demikian mereka tidak seharusnya terhalang daripada memfailkan tindakan yang kedua.

*aDiputuskan:Oleh Steve Shim HB (Sabah & Sarawak)b

[1] Fakta kes jelas sekali menunjukkan bahawa ianya bukanlah keadaan dimana hanya sekadar kegagalan di pihak perayu untuk menuruti peraturan mahkamah. Terdapat kewujudan perintah mahkamah yang wajib mengarahkan perayu-perayu untuk bertindak bagi membuat pindaan dalam masa 14 hari seperti yang dikehendaki oleh KMT. Ianya adalah suatu yang bersifat perintah wajib “peremptori” dan perayu-perayu telah gagal untuk menuruti perintah wajib “peremptori” tersebut. Oleh yang demikian, mahkamah tidak bersetuju dengan kenyataan perayu-perayu bahawa Mahkamah Rayuan telah terkhilaf dalam bersandarkan kepada kes Janov v. Morris.

cd

[2] Perayu-perayu sepatutnya merayu keputusan mahkamah itu dalam tindakan yang pertama. Dengan memfailkan tindakan yang kedua yang mana mengandungi isu-isu serta relif-relif sama seperti dalam tindakan yang pertama merupakan cubaan untuk mengelakkan prosidur rayuan. Oleh yang demikian, itu merupakan penyalahgunaan proses mahkamah.

e

[Rayuan ditolak.]

Case(s) referred to:

Bailey v. Bailey & Anor [1983] 3 All ER 495 (fol)

Janov v. Morris [1981] 3 All ER 78 (fol)

*fLegislation referred to;

Rules of the High Court 1980, O. 20 r. 9

For the appellants - Karpal Singh (CT Lee with him); M/s Fernandez & Co

For the respondent - Chin Yew Meng (A Vishnu Kumar with him); M/s Allen & Gledhill

g

[Appeal from Court of Appeal, Civil Appeal No: W-01-251-1994]

Reported by Usha Thiagarajah

hi

*aJUDGMENT*Steve Shim CJ (Sabah & Sarawak):The Issuesb

This is an appeal by the appellants against the judgment of the Court of Appeal dated 7 October 1998. In the memorandum of appeal, the appellants have postulated the following propositions, namely:

c

(1) That the Court of Appeal erred in law in holding that there has been an abuse of the process of court by the appellants in bringing the Suit No. S1-22-102-1991 (the 2nd suit) against the respondent when the appellants' previous Suit no. F22-262-1986 (the 1st suit) had been set aside for failure to comply with the Rules of the High Court;

d

(2) That the Court of Appeal erred in law in holding that the appellants' 1st suit which was set aside for procedural non-compliance of the Rules of the High Court is similar to a suit being struck off for failure to obey a peremptory order of the court and this precluded the appellants from filing the 2nd suit as being an abuse of the process of the court.

e

The above propositions have to be examined within the confines of the subject-matter upon which leave to appeal was granted by the Federal Court. And that has been stated succinctly as follows: whether it is an abuse of the process of the court for the appellants to file a fresh suit when the 1st suit had been set aside for failure to comply with the procedural rules of the court.

fThe Factual Backgroundg

At the outset, it is pertinent to highlight the factual background relevant to the issues involved. On 2 May 1986 the appellants instituted an action vide Kuala Lumpur High Court Suit No. F22-262-1986 (the 1st suit) against one Low Kim Soon and Scot Leasing as the original defendants to the action. On 13 June 1988, the appellants filed an application to amend the writ of summons to include Allen & Gledhill (the respondent) as a party to the action. On 24 January 1990, the above application for amendment was granted which would require the appellants to effect the said amendment within 14 days from the date of the order in compliance with O. 20 r. 9 Rules of the High Court 1980. However, the appellants failed to do so. On 7 June 1990, the appellants obtained an order for leave to extend time to file their amended writ of summons and statement of claim to the 1st suit. Again, they failed to effect the said amendment within the prescribed period under the Rules. On 27 November 1990, when the respondent was served with the amended writ of summons and statement of claim, it took out an application to set aside the issuance of the said amended writ and statement of claim. On 16 January 1991, the learned senior assistant registrar granted the said application. There was no appeal against the decision of the learned senior assistant registrar.

i

Thereafter, on 12 March 1991, the appellants filed the 2nd suit vide High Court Suit No. S1-22-102-1991, against the respondent who then applied to strike it out on grounds of res judicata and/or issue estoppel and an abuse of the process of the court. On 3 April 1991, the above application was allowed by the learned senior assistant registrar. The appellants appealed against the said decision to the High Court judge who allowed the appeal. The respondent, being dissatisfied with the decision of the High Court, lodged an appeal to the then Supreme Court. In allowing the appeal, the Supreme Court ordered a rehearing of the appellants' appeal from the learned senior assistant registrar before a different judge. In consequence, on 12 August 1994, when the matter was heard before Dato' Hj. Mokhtar Sidin J (as he then was), the appellants' appeal was dismissed on the grounds that issue estoppel applied and hence the filing of the 2nd suit constituted an abuse of the process of the court. Against that decision, the appellants then filed an appeal to the Court of Appeal on 17 August 1994. On 20 August 1998, the Court of Appeal dismissed the said appeal essentially on the same grounds as the High Court judge. The appellants thereafter filed an application in the Federal Court for leave to appeal. Leave was granted but only on the issue which I have already stated.

The Appellants' Case

The main thrust of the appeal, as reflected in the submission of counsel for the appellants, is an attack on the Court of Appeal's reliance on the authority of Janov v. Morris [1981] 3 All ER 78. Counsel contends that the Court of Appeal has erred in failing to appreciate that Janov v. Morris is confined to a situation where a plaintiff's action has been struck out for disobedience of a peremptory order of the court which, according to him, is quite different from a situation where the plaintiff's action has been struck out for want of prosecution on account of his failure to comply with the rules of court. Here, he cites in support the case of Bailey v. Bailey & Another [1983] 3 All ER 495, drawing particular attention to the part under "Held" which states:

- a* There was a fundamental distinction between the case where a plaintiff disobeyed a peremptory order of the court regarding the prosecution of an action and then commenced fresh proceedings within the limitation period raising the same cause of action, and the case where the plaintiff's action had been struck out for want of prosecution and he subsequently commenced fresh proceedings within the limitation period raising the same cause of action, since in the first case the plaintiff was in contempt and commencing the fresh proceedings constituted contumelious conduct which entitled the court to strike out the fresh proceedings, whereas in the second case the mere failure of the plaintiff to comply with the procedural rules of court in the first action did not prevent him commencing the fresh proceedings. Since the plaintiff's first action had been struck out for mere failure to observe the rules as to time and the second action had been commenced within the limitation period, the plaintiff was entitled to proceed with the second action.
- b*
- c*

Reference has also been made to Dunn LJ's observation in the above case when he said inter alia:

- d*
- e* Janov v. Morris was a case in which, in the first action there had been a peremptory order of the court against the plaintiff which the plaintiff had failed to comply with, and accordingly had been guilty of what has been described in the authorities as contumelious conduct. It was on that ground that the first action in Janov v. Morris was struck out. That has always hitherto been regarded as a different situation from the situation here, where the first action was dismissed for want of prosecution on the ground that there had been inexcusable delay in circumstances in which the conduct of the plaintiff could not be described as contumelious.
- f* But counsel for the defendants, in seeing to uphold the order of the judge, submits that on principle there is no difference between the conduct of a plaintiff who deliberately disregards an order of the court, as was the position in Janov v. Morris, and the conduct of a plaintiff who disregards the rules of court and takes no action within the rules, and who, in his submission is in the same position as somebody who deliberately disobeys an order of the court. ...
- g*
- The difficulty about that submission is that, as I have said, there has always hitherto been a distinction between the situation where actions are struck out for disobedience of peremptory orders and where actions are dismissed for want of prosecution. ...
- h* It is in the light of the above cited passages that the appellants take the view that Janov v. Morris does not apply to the present case, which, according to them, concerns a situation where the 1st suit of the appellants had been struck out by the learned senior assistant registrar for mere failure to comply with the procedural rules of court ie, O. 20 r. 9 Rules of the High Court 1980.
- i*

Conclusion

It is significant to note the following undisputed facts, namely, that there was an application by the appellants (as plaintiffs) to amend their writ of summons and statement of claim to include the respondent as a defendant in the 1st suit; that in consequence thereof, the court made an order granting the said application, the effect of which would require the appellants (as plaintiffs), as a matter of course, to comply with O. 20 r. 9 Rules of the High Court 1980 which stipulated that the amendment was to be made within 14 days from the date of the court order, otherwise the amendment would cease to have any effect; that the appellants had failed to effect the said amendment within the stipulated period and apparently without any explanation for such failure.

In our view, the factual circumstances in the instant case clearly indicate that it was not a situation where there was a mere failure on the part of the appellants to comply with the rules of court because quite obviously, there was in existence a specific court order directing the appellants to effect the amendments in compliance with the Rules of the High Court. It was in the nature of a peremptory order of the court and the appellants (as plaintiffs) had failed to comply with such a peremptory order. In the circumstances, we must, with respect, disagree with the appellants' contention that the Court of Appeal had erred in failing to appreciate the ratio in Janov v. Morris in the context of the factual situation in the present case. In alluding to Janov v. Morris, the Court of Appeal cited with approval the observation of Watkins LJ who said inter alia:

In the event of his action being ordered to be struck out for failure to obey a peremptory order, he may appeal against that order seeking, if necessary an extension of time within which to do so. The outcome of such an appeal will to some extent depend on the excuse for failure preferably set forth in affidavit form provided for the court's consideration. If a litigant neglects to avail himself of that procedure and brings a fresh but precisely similar action to that ordered to be struck out, without any explanation then or at any later time for a failure to obey the peremptory order, he should not be surprised that the commencement of the second action is found to be an abuse of the process of the court and for that reason it, too, is struck out.

Thereafter, the Court of Appeal concluded, quite rightly, as follows:

We agree that the filing of the 2nd suit was an abuse of the process of the court since after having filed the 1st suit and obtained an order for its amendment, the appellants had admitted that the amendments were effected out of the prescribed period. When faced with the application to set aside the 1st suit, the appellants again failed to apply for an extension of time

- a* to enable the amendments to be effected. This raises the presumption that the appellants failed to comply with the rules of court. When the order striking out the 1st suit was made, the appellants could have appealed but failed to do so. The appellants felt that they could circumvent the need to appeal by instituting the 2nd suit.
- b* Given the view which we take that there was clearly in existence a peremptory order of the court and that the learned senior assistant registrar had struck out the appellants' 1st suit for disobedience of that peremptory order, we agree with the Court of Appeal's conclusion that the appellants ought to have appealed against that decision and that the filing of the 2nd
- c* suit, containing as it did, the same issues and reliefs as the 1st suit, amounted to a deliberate attempt to circumvent the necessary appeal procedure and therefore constituted an abuse of the process of the court.
- In the circumstances, given the position we have taken, we do not think it necessary to consider what appears to be an alternative stand canvassed
- d* by counsel for the respondent that it was futile to permit the appellants to argue the issue upon which leave to appeal was granted on the ground that it was academic and hypothetical in nature. In our view, it is sufficient, for the reasons stated, to answer in the affirmative, the question posed for our consideration. In the premises, this appeal is dismissed with costs.
- e* Deposit to be paid to the respondent to account for taxed costs.
-

f

g

h

i